Language of Business with Tim Sanders

Language is everything in education, in business and in life. This event focuses on the power of language in the digital age. And it includes the ultimate 'can do' language challenge: can you learn a foreign language in 20 minutes? Our panel of contestants – from schools, from business and from the media – will find out.

This event is organised by Language is Everything, with support from Goole College and the Humber Education and Business Partnership.

Keynote speaker Tim Sanders is one of the most in-demand motivators on the lecture circuit. His research, passion and ability to move audiences to action makes him a perfect fit for this event.

Sanders is a New York Times bestselling author, public speaker, and former Yahoo! executive. He also wrote the bestselling books 'Love is the Killer App', 'Saving the World at Work' and 'The Likeability Factor', as well as his video series The Dirty Dozen Rules of Email Etiquette.

Where: Goole College, Boothferry Road, Goole, DN14 6SR

Language is Everything Dinner

The future of communication: a dinner and debate at Carlton Towers, chaired by Tim Sanders, with a keynote address from Declan Swan, Chief Executive of the National Education Business Partnership Network.

What 'key skills' will the next generation of leaders need to have? Business and education experts come together in magnificent 18th-century surroundings to look ahead to the 21st century and beyond. Who will win the communications game: the person with the best message, or the person with the best understanding of how to exploit technology? Which will be more significant: language barriers or cultural barriers? What are the key languages of the future: is the world becoming more or less multilingual?

Attendance at this event is by invitation only.

Where: Carlton Towers, Carlton, DN14 9LZ

When: 6pm – 9.30pm

(With an 'open house' from 5pm – 6pm)

Carolyn Burgess, chief executive of Language is Everything, presents a special report on her recent trip to the Victoria Climbié School in Côte d'Ivoire, where a 'can do' approach is bringing fresh hope to a new generation.

About us

We're an interpreting and translation company based in Howden, East Yorkshire. Why are we called Language is Everything? Because language is about much more than just words - it's about values, beliefs and ideas. Likewise, interpreters and translators do much more than just help you to understand words - they help you to understand different cultures, different ways of thinking and different approaches to life.

Please visit our website for more information: www.languageiseverything.com. And if you'd really like to find out more, please give us a call and come and visit.

Our operations centre is just off junction 37 of the M62, and you can also find us at the World Trade Centre Hull & Humber.

Goole

About Goole – the place we're holding our events

Goole is a town, civil parish and port located approximately 45 miles (72 km) inland on the River Ouse in the East Riding of Yorkshire. The port is "highly versatile", and is capable of handling nearly three million tonnes of cargo per annum, making it one of the most important ports on the east coast of England.

The town's population is 17,600 and is twinned with Złotów, Poland (and was twinned with Rostock, northern Germany in 1969). Goole was informally twinned with Gibraltar in the 1960s, at that time Gibraltar Court was named in Goole and Goole Court was named in Gibraltar.

It's a hidden gem from a business perspective and we hope those who attend agree that it's a place on the up. Alongside neighbouring Howden, Goole is the UK home of a number of multi-nationals including: Guardian Glass, ebuyer and the Press Association.
